

Abstract

An interactive applet for testing a user in a web-based learning environment. The interactive applet is embedded in a course page of a web-based curriculum. The applet provides question to a user regarding the information presented in the course, 5 followed by a text field. The applet instructs the user to enter an answer to the question in the text field. The applet provides feedback to the user, and allows the user to revise an incorrect answer.